(c) The statutory duties and powers of the I grade Excise Inspectors of the erstwhile Travancore State and the Circle Inspectors of the erstwhile Cochin State under the Abkari, Salt, Tobacco and Opium Acts were more or less similar. The Excise Inspectors of the Travancore Area were also exercising certain powers under the Travancore Sea Customs Act and Land Customs Act whereas the Circle Inspectors of the Cochin Area had no such powers.

The difference in regard to their duties and responsibilities are given below:

The Excise Inspectors of the Travancore area are given the powers of a Tahsildar under the Revenue Recovery Act in respect of issuing demand notices and for the attachment and sale of movables for the collection of Abkari revenue under current demand. They are responsible for the collection of Abkari revenue.

They are also authorised to fine shop-keepers and licensees up to Rs. 5 at a time. They are also empowered to fine subordinates up to Re. 1 at a time. They can transfer Guards from one place to another within their jurisdiction. They can also appoint menials and attendants sanctioned for their Ranges. They can grant casual leave to their subordinates including Sub Inspectors under them:

The Circle Inspectors had none of the above powers except the power to grant casual leave to their subordinates.
